POLITICAL INTELLIGENCE. Counties. Dists. Whig. New York. . 12-H. V. Sigler. 13-R. M. Blatchford. NEW YORK ELECTION. THE CANDIDATES OF THE STATE AND CITY. SIXTEEN PARTIES IN THE FIELD. Over One Thousand Nominees Before Ontario.... the People. The following tables give the names of the various candidates in the field for the approaching campaign, and the different parties by which they have been nomi-nated. Never before in the political history of our State has there been such a disruption of parties. The de-mocracy and the whigs are broken up into contending factions, and even the councils of the Know Nothings have been invaded by the spirit of disunion. Altogether, here are no less than sixteen different parties in existence at present—some of which, however, as may be seen by reference to the tables, have not nominated andidates for all the offices. Our list, however, is quite full, and we would request the secretaries of n nating conventions, and others who may have info on which will be useful in its extension or correct to forward their notes to this office. The multiplic ates make it almost impossible to obtain a rect list, and it is very important that each thould be placed fairly and squarely before the public. soon as possible before election day. We have been abliged, in order to economise space give only the initials of some of the parties; but the lowing explanation will suffice for all purposes : signifies reform; T., temperance; I. nothing but goed. Me well adjusted mind, uncorrupted by ambitious or impure hopes, can, in my judgment, contemplate unmoved the dangers which have audically, like clouds from a volcano, risen and cavironed that Union.

Now, I take it that your projected "Cluba," resting on the broad and beneficent platform of democracy, are meant to have a single eye to the preservation of the Union—are meant to foster every measure having that tendency—are meant to detect, expose and resist whatever threatens to weaken or dissolve it—are meant, in a word, to organize a power of simultaneous action, through correspondence, the press and the ballot box, which will raise a rampart at any and every crisis, against any and every flood, however formidable, of sectional or fanatical disuntion. It is in this belief that I not only approve the propriety and expediency of your plan, but bid you cordially Godspeed with it.

I will not, though strongly tempted, advert to the best practical courses for upholding the Union. They will necessarily engage the deliberations of the "Clubs," when formed. But there is one comprehensive injunction which you will pardon me for thinking important enough, however trite, to be repeated here—Look steadily to the constitution, and see that its provisions be strictly executed. That instrument involves the being of the Union. The constitution violated, the Union flousishes with perennial vigor. I do not question that a union existed before the constitution was framed; but it was a halting, half-way, powerless union; a union dragging its slow length along through the Revolution, and scarcely kept alive even by the necessities and enthusiasm of those iron times. Such a union could not encounter the emergencies of enervating and feverish peace, and its continuance would have kept down, if not fatally crushed out, the clastic spring, onwards and upwards, with which we have moved. The Union of the articles of confederation was not the union of the constitution; in contrast, the former was as rope of dry and bar
